Good morning Forest Update Subscribers,

Summer is finally here, but just barely. Southwest Virginia has been remarkably cool and wet. In fact, what little fruit survived the two late May freezes is very slow to mature. My blueberries (the few that are out there) are just starting to ripen - they are usually completely done by mid-June. But what a year for peas, cabbage, and broccoli! And the cicadas have finally quieted down after four weeks of intense singing.

While things are slowly returning to some semblance of normalcy, we are still awaiting guidance regarding in-person Extension programming. You'll see below we have a Retreat scheduled in late September and have started planning the Fall Forestry & Wildlife Field Tours. These in-person events all remain tentative for now. But we do have a virtual Generation NEXT Program scheduled for September, and the Woods & Wildlife Conferences are going virtual as well (at least for 2021). Going virtually allows us to offer these programs state-wide and we can accommodate up to 500 people per event. The registration fee is much lower and you don't have to travel. Exciting!

In the meantime, the Summer 2020 edition of the Virginia Forest Landowner Update is available. In this edition:

Summer Fun in the Forest

By Page Hutchinson, Virginia Department of Forestry

Kids bored? Or driving you nuts? Trying to beat the heat? Getting out in the woods can solve all these problems!

I suggest you take a bucket with you for holding some equipment for investigating. Five-gallon buckets from home improvement stores are a perfect size and are durable. They can be bought for less than $5. Or recycle a five-gallon bucket open in late July.

You Ain't From Around Here! Exotic Invasive of the Quarter: Japanese Knotweed \(Polygonum cuspidatum\) Part 2

By: Jennifer Gagnon, Virginia Tech

As you may recall from the Spring edition of the Virginia Forest Landowner Update, Japanese knotweed is an herbaceous bamboo-like perennial native to Japan, China and Korea. This species is infamous for the high levels of ecological and economic damage it causes worldwide.

Virginia Urban Wood Newsletter Debuts!

In late April, the Virginia Urban Wood Group published the first edition of the VA Urban Wood e-Newsletter. The newsletter is distributed every other month and features urban wood and small woodlot management news complete with links to expanded stories. Also included are updates from the Virginia Department of Forestry's Urban Wood program. This newsletter serves a wide-ranging audience from those who live in municipalities to the thousands of Virginia woodland landowners who own small parcels of forest land.

Virtual Generation NEXT

Our award-winning legacy planning program is going virtual. Join experienced legacy planning professionals from across Virginia live on Zoom, or on your own time, to learn how to pass your land on to the next generation while keeping it intact, in forest, in family. This program will be comprised of 4 sessions held live from 3-4:30 p.m. on:

- Wednesday September 16
- Thursday September 17
- Wednesday September 23
- Thursday September 24

Registration will be $40/family for all 4 sessions. You will receive several books including a copy of our brand new Legacy Planning for Virginia Landowners book! Registration will open in late July.
